

Michael Bright

I live in Greenhithe and send my children to AJHS. I work as a lawyer, primarily for businesses but with advisory and directorship roles on various private sector and not-for-profit boards.

I bring my legal skills and commercial practicality to the AJHS Board, together with strong interpersonal skills and a genuine care for the wellbeing of others.

I believe Y7 - Y10 are formative years for young people and many of them face difficult challenges in this complex world. It's important to equip them properly - to build positive relationships, problem-solve effectively, hold themselves to a high standard, develop sound values and achieve academic success in areas that resonate with them.

My wife works as an Associate Professor at AUT University and we have one son at ASHS (previously attended AJHS), another son currently attending AJHS and a daughter at Greenhithe Primary who will attend AJHS in due course. In our spare time we enjoy exploring NZ, tramping and (for the boys) mountain biking.
